The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 3 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Aizawa (5,013,926).

See Figure 4 and Col.8, lines 18-23.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 7-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Aizawa.

Figure 4 of Aizawa discloses the claimed subject matter except for the use of a bypass diode or diodes for Claim 10, in parallel with the impedance element (38). It is the opinion of the Examiner that it would have been obvious to include the bypass diode(s) as a means to more quickly charge the gate capacitance on the control circuit when turning-on, thereby increasing performance of the overall device. The number of diodes allow for custom tailoring of the device for particular applications.

Claims 2 and 5 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Aizawa in view of Ehalt et al. (4,931,656).

Claim 2 requires an impedance element, bipolar transistor and diode. Aizawa is somewhat silent with respect to these features. However, Ehalt et al. teach the use of the impedance element (56), bipolar transistor (54) and second diode (58). It would have been obvious to incorporate the teachings of Ehalt et al. so as to offer faster turn-off times as opposed to use of transistor (26). These faster switching speeds are often required in the particular application of the switching relay system.

Claim 6 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The following is a Statement of Reasons for the Indication of Allowable Subject Matter: There does not appear to be motivation for modifying the Prior Art of Record so as to meet the claimed combination found within Dependent Claim 6.
